From the Arranger

Let There Be Peace on Earth was written by Jill Jackson Miller and Sy Miller in 1955 and is usually associated with the Christmas season. Beautiful music is often born out of loss and suffering. Such was the case with this piece. Jackson, who had been suicidal following the failure of a marriage, wrote the song when she experienced what she called the "life-saving joy of God's peace and unconditional love."

My goal as an arranger was to be guided by simplicity in the creation of a visual and aural experience of the spreading of peace. To that end, a soloist begins the anthem and as each successive recipient of that peace shares it with others, singers, choirs and audience members are added so that one has the sense of an exponential accumulation of peace that covers and changes the world. The soloist returns to sing the final phrase as a reminder that peace begins with one person. – Craig Courtney

From the Editor

Humanity has been grappling with the concept of peace since the dawn of history. When we think of peace today, certain ideas tend to come to mind: A setting uncluttered by noise, a region free of violence, or perhaps a home where family members stop their bickering. These images are striking in that they emphasize something that isn't there: conflict, war, tension, sounds, commotion. But peace is more than a lack of something. It is also a greeting: Peace be with you; and a benediction: Go now in peace; and a gift: Peace I leave with you. What if peace is not an absence, but a presence?

The choral ensembles at Capital University posed that question musically with each of their concert programs during the 2013-14 academic year. A commitment to promote peace through song was the impetus to ask Craig Courtney to arrange a choral setting of the beloved Let There Be Peace on Earth. The familiarity and simplicity of this song, together with Craig's beautiful arrangement, creates the effect of an ever-expanding community committing to peace. Each time we performed it on our concerts throughout the year, our conviction to be agents of peace in our lives and the world was renewed. – Dr. Lynda Hasseler
